NIFTY 50

Key Observations –NIFTY

Nifty Slips Further Amid Sustained Selling. Nifty witnessed sustained selling pressure throughout the trading session and eventually closed in the red, indicating continued caution among market participants. The broader market sentiment remained weak, with almost all sectoral indices ending lower. The only exception was Nifty Metal, which managed to buck the broader trend and close in positive territory. From a technical perspective, the index continues to form lower lows on the daily chart, highlighting the prevailing weakness and keeping the short-term trend cautious. Unless the index manages to reclaim higher levels with sustained buying momentum, the possibility of further downside pressure remains. Going ahead, 23,100 remains an important support level for Nifty, while 23,800 is likely to act as a key resistance zone. A decisive move above 23,800 could improve the near-term sentiment, whereas a break below 23,100 may intensify selling pressure. Overall, the near-term outlook remains cautious, and traders may prefer to remain selective until the index shows clearer signs of a trend reversal.

BANK NIFTY

Key Observations – BANK NIFTY

Bank Nifty Continues to Face Selling Pressure. Bank Nifty opened on a weak note and remained under sustained selling pressure throughout the trading session, reflecting a cautious undertone across the banking sector. The weakness was visible across both major segments, with PSU Banks declining 0.51% and Private Banks falling 0.95%, indicating broad-based pressure within the banking space. From a technical perspective, Bank Nifty formed a bearish candle on the daily timeframe, signalling continued weakness and a lack of strong buying. The prevailing setup suggests that the index remains vulnerable to further downside, keeping the near-term outlook cautious. Going ahead, 56,000 is likely to act as a crucial support zone. A decisive break and sustained trading below this level could strengthen the bearish momentum and open the door for further downside. On the upside, 57,100 remains an important resistance level. A sustained move above this zone, accompanied by stronger buying participation, would be required to revive positive momentum and improve the short-term technical setup. Overall, the outlook for Bank Nifty remains cautious to weak, with traders likely to closely monitor the 56,000 support and 57,100 resistance levels for the next directional move.
